Court Rejects Bus Plan Charlotte Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court rejected Monday a plan to bus students from the city of Charlotte, N.C., to desegregate schools. The plan, given without notice, was a rare setback for the NAACP and its lawyers who have won many cases in the past.

Greenberg, counsel of the NAACP, said the ruling was "a matter with no significance."

He said the Supreme Court's ruling while in recess, in other major actions it refused to reopen an antitrust suit against major auto manufacturers over air pollution devices, and agreed to hear a dispute over reapportionment of Indiana's congressional districts.

Prior to Monday's ruling the court rarely rejected appeals or pleas made by civil rights lawyers in school cases. Earlier this term the court ordered desegregation of schools in 30 Mississippi districts, in 14 other Southern districts, in Oklahoma City and in Memphis.

Greenberg in his statement said: "It is quite far-fetched to read the Supreme Court's order as anything other than refusal to disagree with the Court of Appeals' desire to have the conflicting views of the parties clarified by the trial judge."

He said the purpose of the NAACP fund's motion was to "expedite consideration of the matter" and he noted that a conference was scheduled Monday afternoon in McMillan's chambers on the busing question.

Student Relations

Petitions Seek Office Eliminations

By NEAL PROCTOR
Universe Staff Writer

The elimination of the ASBYU Student Relations Office is the aim of petitions being circulated by ASBYU President Ken Kartchner. Kartchner needs the signatures of five per cent of the student body to submit a constitutional amendment before a student vote.

He is circulating petitions in the Wilkinson Reception Center in hopes of gathering 1,250 signatures by Wednesday so a special election can be called before next month's student body elections.

The Student Relations Office is responsible for elections, freshman orientation, human development, polling of students and on-campus public relations.

Public relations has been a source of continuing conflict between the President's Office and the Student Relations Office. The President's Office handles off-campus public relations.

"Responsibilities Not Defined" Jim Ferguson, vice-president of student relations, says the division of responsibility between the two offices hasn't been defined clearly enough, while Kartchner says public relations can't be separated.

"Public relations by nature belongs under the president," Kartchner said. He explained that people naturally write or come to the president when they want information or have gripes. He added that the president sits on more committees and knows more about what's going on and is therefore best able to handle student relations.

Today's Forum

The dean of the College of Religious Instruction at BYU is Tuesday's Devotional assembly speaker. Dr. Daniel Ludlow has also been head of the Institute of Book of Mormon Projects and the Institute of Mormon Studies.

Student Body 1970 Election Schedule Set

The schedule for election activities for this year's student body elections is:

March 19—Orientation Meeting at 7 p.m. in 396 Wilkinson Center. All candidates should attend.

March 23—Rules Test at 7 p.m. in 321 Wilkinson Center. All candidates must be prepared to take this test concerning the election rules. The rules are available now at the Student Relations Office, fourth floor of the Wilkinson Center. Declaration of candidacy forms must be turned in at this meeting.

March 27—Nominations meeting in 347 Wilkinson Center also at 7 p.m. A nominator and a person to attend the nomination should be present with the candidate.

April 2—Deadline for THE DAILY UNIVERSE questionnaire, pictures and platforms by 4 p.m. at the Election Committee desk. Quad plot and ballot positioning drawing at 7 p.m.

April 8—Deadline for quad plot ingenuity projects at 5 p.m. These forms must be approved before quad projects may be constructed.

April 9-10—Primary Election.

April 10—Financial statements are due from all candidates.

April 13—Quad plot-ballot positioning drawing at 7 p.m.

April 15—Quad plot project approval forms must be in by 5 p.m.

April 16—Election Committee forum at 10 p.m. in Smith Fieldhouse.

THE PEARL Of Great Price papyrus, shown here by special collections librarian Chad Flake, will be on display at the BYU open house to be in connection with General Conference April 4.

Mancini Sound To Augment Orchestra At Belle Concert

When Henry Mancini conducts the Utah Symphony Orchestra Saturday at the Belle of the Y Concert, the music will be his own and so will the sound. He will be bringing his own rhythm section to sit in with the orchestra. Mancini's musical career began in 1932 when, at the age of eight, he learned to play the flute. At age 12 he took up the piano and became interested in arranging.

After graduating from high school in 1942, Mancini attended the Julliard School of Music for a year prior to being drafted. After his release from the service in 1945, he joined the Glenn Miller-Tex Beneke Orchestra as a pianist-arranger.

In 1952 Mancini joined the music department of Universal-International studios, where he contributed to over 100 films.

Parking Change

Students may park in the lot south of the Fletcher Engineering Bldg. The lot, blacked in on Monday's map, has a much greater capacity than the lot which will be closed to students.

The new restricted lot is east of the Engineering Bldg.

Rock Dance Prayer: Is It Really Proper?

One of the special things about BYU is the fact that we commence many of our campus activities with a word of prayer and thus acknowledge our dependence upon God. In most cases it is entirely fitting that we do so.

Yet there seems to be a feeling among some that if we aren't beginning and ending a given activity with prayer that that activity is, by definition, unacceptable in the eyes of the Lord. Hence we sometimes find ourselves calling upon God in the most inappropriate of circumstances.

For example, the weekend writhings of the contemporary (rock) dances are sanctified by the intoned pleadings of prayer. Similarly, the student body concerts featuring such groups as the Fifth Dimension and other non-Tabernacle Choir entertainment also feature rather meaningless "we-ready-to-start-now" prayers.

If we insist on praying at rock dances and concerts, why not be consistent and offer a prayer in the Varsity Theater once everyone has been seated before the showing of the cartoon and movie? There is nothing wrong with rock dances, concerts, and campus movies; it is just that prayer is too sacred to be made so common. If one gives the matter a little thought, there are all sorts of mundane and frivolous human activities that are not appropriately begun or finished with prayerful solicitation.

If swearing amounts to taking the Lord's name in vain, or in some way holds little common, what shall we call prayer at rock dances? Can we say that couples poised to "blow their minds" are in a spiritual frame of mind?

Prayer must not degenerate into a perfunctory gesture or reflexive act whose concluding "amen" signals that the fun is about to begin. Perhaps one reason why many prayers are empty, cliché-cluttered and word-multiplying is that too often we pray in circumstances that literally provide nothing about which to pray.

Let us hold prayer in higher regard. Prayer is an expression of reverence for God and things sacred. It is not a custom, ritual or way of "showing" the world that we are religious and spiritual. Let campus activities stand on their own merits. If they are in poor taste, not even prayer can redeem them.

—Letters to the Editor—

POOR TASTE

Editor:

We were interested in reading Dale Van Atta's "critique" on the art show being currently presented in the Wilkinson Center Art Gallery by Jose Steele. We don't pretend to be informed critics of art one way or another but we do feel that the manner in which Mr. Van Atta chose to present his article was definitely in poor taste.

Taste in art must necessarily vary from individual to individual and any one who chooses to do so may like or dislike a particular brand or style of painting. He may do so publicly or privately, but to print such unnecessary and rudely phrased remarks as Mr. Van Atta places in ink in his article seems definitely out of line. Those remarks were neither intelligently critical of the art

it seems to me that at attending a Christian universe least we can do it conduct our public and private as is people who follow the ex-Christ—this includes unimproving and unnecessary in our newspapers. RHOE

More Assembly Questions

Teeth For Consumer May Come From Bill

As more and more consumers find themselves stuck with more and more products or services that won't work or work poorly, the need grows for laws to protect them. Consumer-minded men like Ralph Nader, Sen. Philip Hart, Benjamin Rosenthal and others are swamped with letters from gyped, deceived and frustrated consumers. It is rare that anything can be offered them, except sympathy. Even the government's office for consumer affairs, run by Virginia Knaus, has no enforcement power against dishonest companies and merchants; only recently has the White House given Mrs. Knaus a measure of "power"—she can forward letters of consumer complaint to the companies cited.

Currently pending before Congress is a bill which should add a few sharp teeth to consumers' rights. The Magnuson-Moss Consumer Products Guarantee Act will give the buyer of, say a television, the guarantee that the machine will work well and for a reasonable length of time—for the duration designated. Theoretically, this is the ethic under which the public has been buying its goods all along; but under the Uniform Commercial Code, which holds in 49 of 50 states, the merchant can place an express guarantee on his product in place of an implied warranty. In laymen's terms, this means that a can-opener that had an implied warranty, which would last for a number of years, can be strapped with an express guarantee that will see the product through for only, say, six months, which is hardly long enough, as many luckless consumers find out.

The Magnuson-Moss bill would cut out this kind of nonsense. It would create minimum federal standards if the manufacturer decides to give a warranty or guarantee on his product.

Thus, it would prohibit the manufacturer from limiting his liability. If a merchant says, "I guarantee my product," his words mean exactly that: he guarantees his product. The Magnuson-Moss bill would further allow a consumer to bring court action against a manufacturer and have the latter pay attorney fees if he loses the case.

It is incredible that laws like these are needed, since the Federal Trade Commission, Mrs. Knaus, even Mr. Nixon in his recent consumer message, are presumably looking out for the American consumer. But the presumption cannot be depended on when the unaware consumer walks into the marketplace. (Washington Post)

Social, Academics Answers

Q. Why no academic parranmy program?

A. The Academic Parranmy Program under the title of "Introspect" was started in the fall semester and continues this semester. The events were well publicized in THE DAILY UNIVERSE.

Q. Why no college council to represent special interest groups?

A. Special interest groups abound in multiplicity all over the campus. The Young Democrats, the Alpine Club, Chi Trietas, and on and on goes the list (including departmental groups). Our proposal was, and still is being considered, that college councils be formed in each college comprised of one or more members from each department. The councils would take over the functions of several of the smaller activities now being carried out by the Academics Office and hopefully plan new ones which would have meaning for their individual members.

Q. Why no intra-mural debate tournament?

A. There appeared to be limited interest on the part of students, although plans are still in existence for such a competition later in the spring. The final decision has yet to be made.

Q. Why no weekly student press conferences with student officers?

A. This was one of the first programs implemented by an ASBYU Office after last year's elections. For several weeks officers were present. They presented news to the Hyde Park Forum of things that happened in student government. Again interest was not exactly rampant.

The program did from student apathy more than anything else. However, student officers have been present in Hyde Park on several occasions. Ken Karchner was almost a regular attendee during fall semester.

Q. Why no post-graduate academic feedback? Why no pass-fail system in P.E. and religion?

A. Both of these areas involve major decisions by not only student government but the administration and the faculty. As evidence by procrastination time and time again with the calendar change—such programs are not quickly realizable. Such is the case with both of these programs. They are still in my opinion very desirable but the program is small if it exists at all. To be honest we realized this early and have concentrated in areas where we can make a contribution. Sorry. Q. The social attitude survey (spring 1968) rated dances low and casual activities high. Why have we had a one third increase in dances and less parranmy?

A. It is true that we have had more dances this year than were held last year. Nevertheless, they have proven successful. However, we have also attempted to expand the program called "parranmy." The budget was increased, better promotion was used, and over 3,000 students were involved last semester.

Q. Why have we paid bands considerably more this year than last year?

A. For the same reason that we pay more for a car, shirt, textbook, rent, etc., this year than you did last year.

Q. Why should we force our dress standards on concert entertainers? I understand the Turtles were told that if they were ever to come back to BYU, they would need a haircut. Because many BYU students are willing to pay $3.50-$5.50, and drive to Salt Lake to see rock groups and other performers, why not bribe groups down here and the long hair rule. Didn't classical composers have hair? Would they be permitted here?

A. In selecting big entertainment, we attempt those who have some value to offer BYU. We have forced big name entertainers cut their hair, and I think Mozart would be all perform on campus.

Q. We say so much standards on this campus. I think that we are such examples to the world. So just like to ask why it is can't have the type of dress reflect our so-called image and tired of rocking time.

A. The ASBYU Social Office the months of November, December, January and February sponsored 45 dances. Of which include Homecoming, Preference, 20 were contra and 21 were conventional to balance the program. Q. What are you doing to social entertainment hundreds of married students this campus who also activity fee?

A. We do not discriminate social event in regards to students. They are married students have been in the past and failed. App married students find the entertainment.

Q. What was the ob publishing the accomplish of the Social Office?

A. The Social Office is that funds for a government were used why?

A. The answer to this can be read in the Feb. 1 issue of THE DAILY UNI-

Published Monday through Friday during the academic year and twice weekly during the summer college term—except during vacation and examination periods. The Daily Universe is published by the Associated Students of Brigham Young University for students, faculty, administration, and staff.

Dale, a senior in political science from Clairmont, Calif., has debated with the team for three and a half years.

He has competed in both individual events and debate and has triumphed in 25 intercollegiate tournaments. Dale describes a forensic tournament as having "20 to 100 schools involved, so when you take first place it's not just by competing with another school."

Among the awards that Dale has garnered are: First place at Loyola of Chicago National Invitational Tournament, spring 1969; first place in the Arizona National Invitational, spring 1968; tied for outstanding debater award at Loyola of Chicago among 84 participants, spring 1970; first place in extemporaneous speaking for the Great Mid-Western Forensic Tournament, spring 1970; and first place in expository speech at the Western States Speech Association Tournament.

Dale and his colleague, Garland Dennett, have both qualified to compete for the national championship—an honor reserved for a limited amount of teams.

Dale serves as an assistant in the Academics Office in charge of the Academics Emphasis Committee. He is also a member of two national scholastic organizations.

While in high school, Dale was Utah State champion in debate. He enjoys debate "for the association of top-flight people and because of the competition factor, I enjoy representing BYU in academic competition. I feel debate is extremely useful training in mental skills such as analytic thinking," Dale states.

Mike Edmunds is a senior in public address from La Mirada, Calif. His specialty is in individual events, which he feels are more difficult than straight debate. "The individual events require more polish, while debate is more difficult logically," Mike says.

He feels that the BYU squad is bot strong on individual events but strong on debate. Mike states, "The two should add to each other and complement each other."

Mike puts his main emphasis on interpretive reading, which he feels is a "lost art." His central theme is loneliness and he gets a lot of his material from Rod McKuen poetry.

Mike has won seven trophies this year, competing in California, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona. He is considered the best in interpretive reading in the western United States.

Mike adds that before he enters into competition he must prepare so that he will be able to read his material with the correct amount of interpretation. "McKuen is so depressing that I have to pretend that I have just broken up with my girl friend, or else I sing sad songs in my mind to get the right effect," Mike says.

Mike has been a member of the debate team for four years off and on. Last year he served as senior class president and he also designed the float that won the sweepstakes award in last year's Homecoming parade.

"I like competition. The harder it is to compete the more fun it is. Debate teaches you to think and look at both sides of a question. You take everything one step further and can analyze it better. It also helps you to meet people and get along with them better," Mike concludes.

Mike and Dale both feel the team looks promising for next year. They also give a lot of credit to their coach, Jed Richards, whom they feel is the best in the West.

Debate is not like some people's conception, Mike adds, "they're not mousy guys at all—they're real people doing what they like and having fun."

"I REMEMBER MAMA" is still lacking a performing cat, according to Dr. Preston Gledhill, director. If any student has theatrical ambitions for his pet, the Speech and Dramatic Arts Dept. will give the cat a chance.

The feline, known as Uncle Elizabeth in the play, should be medium sized, well behaved and capable of crying on cue.

Soccer To 'Em! Cougars Clobber Undefeated Salt Lake Kickers, 5-

By JIM HUNT
Universe Sports Writer

Before the soccer match Saturday between BYU B and the Salt Lake Kickers, Cougar Coach Hal Bodon told winger Phil Roberts, "The way you've been shooting in practice, you'd better concentrate on passing off unless you're wide open."

Roberts then proceeded to ignore the coach's remarks by scoring the first three goals in a 5-1 victory.

BYU B actually beat a team that was undefeated in the second division in the Utah Soccer Association. The Kickers' one loss of the fall had been protested, and the club was awarded a rematch with the Salt Lake Yankees.

The Cougar B remained second in the division with the victory that gave them a 6-2 record behind Alemannia B's, 7-1. The Kickers are 4-1-1.

In the first half, the more experienced Kickers contained the BYU offense and trailed only 1-0 after the first 45-minute period. But in the second half, the Cats' youth and conditioning made the difference.

Roberts headed in the second goal on a cross from Rick DeMille. After Roberts' third goal, he was replaced by player-coach Bodon. Then Paul Francis raced in to bang home the fourth tally. Bert Johnson's shot came onto the field off the cross. Adrian Massey scored the goal, converting a pass a Bodon.

It was the fourth consecutive shutout for BYU B, which has won five in a row. It was the team's fifth shutout, to the league.

BYU A played a friendly match with the Incas Saturday. Cougars scored a 2-1 victory. Does not count in the standings.

In other league action, Hollandia A presented BYU a 5-3 win over previously undefeated Alemannia A. The presented the German club, taking over the league. United A moved into a virtual lead with BYU A. A strength of a 6-2 victory over Hellas. United has played a game more than the Cougars.

BYU Wrestler Injured In Automobile Mishap

Four members of the BYU wrestling team were involved in a freak automobile accident while enroute from Colorado State University, where the Cougars had just captured the WAC wrestling championship.

The condition of the road proved instrumental in the accident, as the car in which the four wrestlers were riding in skidded on the icy pavement while trying to avoid hitting an on-coming truck.

BYU's Larry Pittman sustained a fractured vertebrae in the accident and is currently under medical treatment at the BYU Health Center. BYU wrestling coach Fred Davis stated, "Larry's condition is coming along fine, but he will not be able to participate in the NCAA National Wrestling Championships to be held next week at Northwestern University."

Y Baseballers Hold Records

The Cougar horseholders return a load of experience this year and along with it goes a number of records.

Lee Berge holds the record with two others of five hits in a single game. Dane Iorg is also tied for the record for most doubles per game with three.

Doug Hough holds numerous records among them: homers in a seven inning game, 3; most at bats in a season, 178; most hits in a season, 67; most doubles in a season, 15; and most total bases, 107. Doug also is second in batting average in Cougar records with the 396 average he had last year.

Richard Fairbanks, Terry Sanford and Berge have their names in the record books for most stolen bases. Each has two.

All the record holders are playing again for Coach Tuckett. The Cougars are trying to regroup their forces after a 2-4 trip to California.

They leave again on Friday for another California expedition.

Utah, Pistol Could Meet

The Runnin' Redskins and Pistol Pete moved one step toward a possible matchup as both won their first round games in the NIT, but not without each team showing a case of "pardonitis."

For those who don't know, "pardonitis" is a common disease affecting many teams that go into New York's Madison Square Garden for the first time. In other words, it's an extreme case of jitters.

Utah plays tourney favorite Marquette today, while LSU goes against Oklahoma in the quarterfinal round. The two winners will meet in Thursday's semi-final.

Utah's Redskins overcame a miserable first half, which saw them throw the ball away and miss easy shots repeatedly, to edge the Duke Blue Devils in a 78-75 thriller Saturday after Senior guard John Hunter a free throw with 13 seconds remaining to give the Utes a lead. Utah got the rebound. Duke's last chance shot and Hawkins scored the final basket as the horn sounded to give the Utes the three point margin.

N.M. Lobos Beat BYU Gymnasts

The New Mexico defeated the Cougar gymnasts hard-won 161.95 to 161.90 victory Friday in Albuquerque.

The Friday loss brought Cougar total to seven wins, five losses for the season.

After the contest, gym coach Bruce Morgengren remarked that the New Mexico team probably the toughest conference.

The next meet for the gymnasts will be the tournament in New Mexico March 26-28.

Y Bowlers Win Best Ball Tourney; Host Conference Schools Saturday

ALL TOURNEY winners Marjane Nielson and Tom Sears with Coach Shafter Down. The BYU team is in action Saturday in the Games Center at 9:30 a.m. as it hosts the Intermountain Bowling Conference Schools.

The BYU Bowlers, with a victory in the second annual Best Ball Tournament last Saturday, are looking forward to the Intermountain Bowling Conference Meet to be held this Saturday at 9:30 a.m. in the Games Center.

Participating in this week's meet will be current front-runner: Boise State College, Weber State, Utah, Utah State and the host Cougar team.

Also on tap this week are tryouts for the bowling team which take place Thursday at 5:10 p.m., and again next Monday and Tuesday at the same time.

Both men and women are eligible to try and outdo present team members.

Last Saturday's Best Ball Tournament was almost a repeat of last year's exciting tournament, with BYU again defeating Weber State in the final round of play by a score of 237 to 204.

The team of Marjane Nielson and Tom Sears of BYU defeated Laurie White and Roscoe Stack from Weber.

Marjane and Tom rolled games of 224, 215, 223 and 237 for an average of 224. Laurie and Roscoe rolled games of 212, 223, 211 and 204 for an average of 215.

In the first round, BYU defeated Utah State and advanced to the finals by downing Utah in the second and third rounds. Weber defeated Utah in the first round and Utah State in the second and third rounds.

Lynne Cowles and Bill Gabrish from Utah State won the consolation title.

"I'm proud of each member of our team and it's a joy to win," commented bowling coach Shafter Down.

The tournament was videotaped in color by KBYU-TV to be shown at a later date.

Both winners for BYU are sophomores. Marjane is from Mesa, Ariz., and is majoring in elementary education. Her hobbies include interior decorating, artwork and sports.

She joined the bowling team on the advice of her coach at the first of the year. Since then she has changed her delivery from a back-up ball which curves to the right to a hook ball which is responsible for her current success.

Tom is a business major from New Bedford, Mass. His hobbies include aviation and bowling. He has recorded a high series of 737 and 2,369 in open play.

We can't know where we're going if we don't know where we are.

On April 1, you're going to fill in your Census Form. If you think it's just a nuisance, think again. Because without it, your neighborhood, your state, your nation, would be a poorer place to live if you think this is an overstatement, just consider the facts.

Take education: Your community needs years to plan, build, and staff extra school buildings. It can't wait until an unexpected influx of first-graders suddenly arrives at the door. Thanks to the Census it doesn't have to. The 1970 tally at one-year-olds will give your school board five years to prepare—so your school will be ready for your children when they're ready for school.

Take representation: Before you can be represented, you have to be counted—and the Census is the only chance you've got. Filling out your form makes sure you don't lose a voice in city, state, and local government. Make sure that the doctrine of "one man, one vote" applies to you.

Take housing: The answers you—and your neighbors—give on your Census Form is the only way the government can find out whether your neighborhood needs help. That's the reason for those questions about bathrooms and age of buildings and so forth. And if you're living in substandard conditions, you can get help—but only if the government has the facts.

Take recreation: Old age and youth have very different needs when it comes to recreation. But the city can't make a decision between a park and a playground without knowing the age composition of the neighborhood—and only your Census Form can give the answer.

And so it goes! Your Census answers end up as valuable information—for your country, your community—and yourself. And every question you answer is completely confidential—not even the FBI can ever see an individual Census Form.

So don't hesitate to give the Census Bureau all the facts! It's absolutely essential if you want your community—and your country—to be a better place to live.

Wye Editors Comment On Their Publication

By RUTH DOTY
Staff Writer

Purely for the sake of definition, "Wye" magazine is one of BYU's literary publications produced both in fall and spring containing poems, short stories and essays written by students and illustrated with photography.

It is a student commentary, a reflection of attitude and an extension of the general mood on campus.

But to really know about the magazine, talk instead to editor Laurel Cole who says that "personally, the 'Wye' is the most ideal publication a student could dream up—there are no ads so the editor is not curtailed by certain stipulations and has a free hand to put his own creative ideas into effect."

"Wye" magazine has always placed high in the Rocky Mountain Collegiate Association, an organization which judges on content, photography, cover, and typography to determine a magazine's worth. In the past, the magazine has fallen short in content; that needs improvement.

"The writing in the spring issue will be excellent," Laurel says, "but expresses the viewpoint of the day. I'd like to see Mormons do more to mold their own culture in giving their own viewpoint through the religion, not in an emotional way, but positively in a day of negative viewpoint."

The theme this year, "People and Places," is a very general one yet students have not taken advantage of their opportunity to have their work printed. "I'm extremely surprised at the lack of student participation," says Laurel. "Only 35 to 40 people submitted manuscripts, so the majority of writing eventually used is done by 10 to 15 people."

Commenting too on the problems involved in maintaining a high quality of content, Ann Doty, assistant editor, says that "when a writer can accomplish a re-creation of experience, his work has worth and beauty. And in my work editing 'Wye' submissions, I've seen people who work hard enough to accomplish this worth in their writing. I've seen a few who are excellent, not only because they have 'talent' but because they work with that talent. They revise and refine every piece they write, and they discipline everything they express, and that's the only way to make writing succeed. That's also why so few succeed."

Despite the lack of material submitted, Laurel and her staff have had enough to attempt to make the magazine more a journalistic commentary on today's society, which is another thing the publication has lacked in the past.

They hope to present the magazine in such a way as to be more appealing to a larger audience.

Instead, too, of using unrelated photos, they have assigned specifically what they would like photographed to illustrate the literature, resulting in a greater unity throughout the magazine.

The spring issue, 2000 copies of 72 pages each, will be on sale at the end of April since press time takes about five weeks even after all the months of editing and planning have been completed.

But when it is complete, it will be a creative, unique publication. "If our writing shows a lack of sensitivity, in the midst of the most sensitive religion of all time and place, it's because we don't work hard enough," says Ann. "We don't emphasize enough the refinement of our individual perception, understanding, sensitivity, and finally, words on the page."

Because "Wye" magazine is a creation of people willing to work at the business of creating, and is representative of Mormon work, Editor Laurel Cole urged that "as Mormons at a Mormon university, we have a real challenge."

And when the staff has accomplished the "re-creation of experience" in "Wye" magazine, they will have published something that does have worth and beauty because they are aware of their challenges.

Student Relations

The president should leave the carrying out of programs to the vice-presidents.

Ferguson said much of the conflict has resulted from lack of communication. He says he hasn't known what the president's office was doing until they've done it, and as a result, there have been duplications.

Kartchner also sees other reasons for eliminating the office. He says orientation has been handled by people other than the Student Relations Office under the direction of Bob Baird, an adviser to student government.

He said experience has shown that each office does its own polling. Kartchner said he didn't believe student government money should be expended for human development programs.

Elimination of this would leave the office with elections as its only responsibility, he said, which he doesn't believe warrants a vice-presidency by itself.

Polling a Problem

Although Kartchner conceded that it would be better if the Student Relations Office did handle all the polling, he said he didn't believe something which was good in theory but didn't work in practice should continue. Ferguson admitted that polling has been a problem, but said the office has come up with a workable solution for next year, although it is too late to do anything about it this year.

He said the problem has been a matter of polling methods.

Bill Manser graduated in 1967 with a B.S. degree in Industrial Engineering.

After an intensive training program, Bill became an IBM marketing representative. His job, selling computer systems.

His technical background is valuable

Many of Bill's customers are involved in scientific and engineering applications. "That's where my engineering degree really pays off. I can come to grips with technical details without losing sight of the overall picture."

Marketing is solving problems

But, as Bill points out, there's a lot more involved in marketing at IBM than just selling a product. "I sit down with the customer and learn what his information handling problems are. Then I have to analyze his total operation in depth."

Only after weeks—sometimes months—of analysis do I recommend a specific computer system that will answer his needs.

"One of the best things about my job is that I get to deal with people at the top. Company presidents. Decision-makers. And my work helps them make multimillion-dollar decisions."

"I have a partner and we operate as a two-man team. IBM believes that small teams generate more and better ideas. So do I."
